

It was 6 in the morning and there was a family getting ready for school and work, 7 girls getting ready and dad getting ready.

It was starting to get sunny and bright outside, two twin sisters were in an argument, one name Angel one name Andrea.

All the girls came out and started to eat breakfast there was crispy bacon, sunny side up eggs, and biscuits. "Y'all don't need to be arguing this early in the morning," their mom said. The two girls ignore her. All the girls names are Ann, Angel, Andrea, Carry, Sherry, Traci, Terri. Andrea and Angel are 8 years old. It was around the time to go out to wait for the bus so Ann, Angel, Andrea, and Traci go wait for the bus while Angel and Andrea are still arguing. While Andrea is walking across the road to get on the bus a drunk driver comes and hits her, she flies into the air and right on to the pavement. All the kids and bus driver on the bus are sad, devastated. While the bus driver rushes off the bus Ann, Angel, and Traci all burst out crying Ann and Angel stay with her and Traci went to get their parents. Their parents come to the end of the driveway and sees her on the ground in pain and Ann and Angel hugging her, their mom bursts out in tears and their dad is devastated. Their dad runs into the house and calls the ambulance. A little later the ambulance comes rushes her into the truck, Ann, Angel, and Traci rushes into the car and goes to the hospital, when they get there, they call Carry, Sherry, and Terri. A little later everyone can go in and see her. They walk in the an 8 year old girl with tubes all over her, needles in her, medications beside her, and more. All of them were upset but Angel was most likely the one hurting the most because it was her twin sister, what Angel would look at constantly was the heart monitor. Andrea couldn't talk at that moment.

They all stay there all day until until they had to leave, none of them wanted to leave. They went home, none of them really talked. Ann went to her room, went in her closet, and saw the dress that Andrea loved and always wanted to wear, she started crying. They all got called for dinner, they barely talked after they finished they got ready to bed, Ann, Angel, and Traci had school tomorrow.

The next day they woke up and didn't go to school, they were planning on not going to school for a bit. They all waited for the hospital to open for visitors. A little later they were there, Andrea could talk a little bit but not that much, they stayed all day and sometimes they would let their dad stay the night with Andrea.

The next day when everyone was in the room with her the doctor said, "she's most likely not gonna make it." Everyone is crying, hugging on her, hugging on each other. None of them would leave at all especially their dad.

It was hard for them to leave for the night, they let her dad stay a night with her. They never wanted to leave her.

A few days later they get a call that Andrea had passed, they all go into this quiet shade, start crying or thinking of everything they had done together. Angel doesn't know what to really do cause she never apologized from their argument, from what they said, what they did. She could never apologize and say sorry.

None of them go to school or work, none of them worry really about anything around the house for a bit.

Ann was thinking about that blue dress that Andrea loves and always asks her to wear it. So she brings the dress and asks while crying "can Andrea wear this?" Her mom turns around, looks at her, she starts to tear up "yes, she will look so beautiful in it." Ann walks off back to her room.

Ann, Angel, and Traci all share a room so when Ann walks into their room Traci muttered "why are you holding that?" Ann said very quietly Andrea's gonna go in it.

A few days have passed now and their getting ready for the funeral. They put Andrea in the dress, get the coffin ready, and get's everything set up.

A day later, and it's the funeral. They all get ready and head to Smith's funeral home. They meet everyone there, about 1 hour later they go to Rose Cemetary in Winder Georgia and have a few last words and bury her.

It was a really hard and emotional time for everyone. Nobody in the family went to school and work for a about a week or more.

They later then went to school and work and everything got a little better for them, but they were still really sad, shocked, etc... Everyone were going up to Ann, Angel, traci, carry, sherry, and terri either if they were at work or at school people would make sure their ok. A little bit later things settled down and not everything went back to normal but things did. They started to live their lives normally and the family got to learn how to live without a sister/daughter but they lived through it and still is today.
